

Receiving Love

God is love.

Love is all there is.

Love makes the world go round.

Isn't it wonderful to feel loved? Our step feels lighter, our perspective brighter, and we feel a sense of belonging, of being Home in a very deep way. It is the highest state of being, feeling loved, and one that we are rarely present with.

Our problem is that we are constantly looking for sources of love outside ourselves, even going so far as to doing things that really aren't natural to our core selves, just so we might be loved. This kind of love is usually short lived and one we often find ourselves chasing after. Unfortunately this is an endless and, but for the briefest sense of feeling love, unfulfilling quest.

That homecoming feeling of being loved that I am talking about comes from the one true Source of Love...Divine Light, Creator, God, and can only come in through my Higher Self. Not my parents, not my mate, not my children or my friends. When I finally became aware that no one is responsible for loving me but me, a huge shift took place in how I receive love from others. I am more open to receive love in a supportive manner, like a mirror held in front of me to be able to see my own Self-love. And when I am truly full of love for myself, I am able to give love in a natural and flowing way...without any agendas, conditions, or restraint.

I don't know about you but I struggle constantly with the idea of belonging, and nothing says Home like deep abiding Self-love. My body, mind and Spirit are in complete vibrational harmony, singing my Soul's song.
